How can you hide a solar panel installation?

Surround Them With Foliage is a simple way to hide a traditional solar panel installation. Plant trees in strategic areas around your property to block them from view without altering your home.

How do I protect my solar panels and inverters?

Secure your solar cables to your solar panels, inverters, batteries, and other components and devices, and prevent them from moving, shaking, or falling off. Organize your solar cables neatly and orderly, and prevent them from tangling, twisting, or crossing each other.

How do you secure a solar panel?

Secure your solar cables firmly and neatly to the supports and conduits, leaving some slack for thermal expansion and contraction. Use junction boxes and connectors that are compatible with your solar cables and modules, and seal them properly to prevent moisture and dust ingress.

How do I protect my solar cables?

Using solar cable protection devices, such as conduits, ducts, sleeves, and covers, shield and insulate your solar cables, and prevent them from being exposed or damaged by weather, animals, vandalism, theft, or fire.
